Travel Registration – Helping Stop the Spread of COVID-19

Nearly all New Brunswick's COVID-19 cases have been traced back to travel. Controlling access for travelers entering New Brunswick from outside Atlantic Canada, including workers coming to or returning to the province, is an important tool that the Government of New Brunswick is using to limit the spread of COVID-19.

All travelers entering New Brunswick from outside of Atlantic Canada must register through the Travel Registration Program at www.gnb.ca/travelregistration.

All travelers entering New Brunswick from outside Atlantic Canada must have confirmation of their travel registration from the Government of New Brunswick before they enter the province. Registrations provide Public Health with information critical in confronting COVID-19.

International Travel

Travelers entering New Brunswick from the United States, or other international locations, whose travel has been approved by Canada Border Services Agency must also register their travel through the New Brunswick Travel Registration Program. This includes New Brunswick residents who travel internationally and return.

The Government of New Brunswick is providing international travelers with an online resource to make the registration process easier. As of Wednesday, October 21 international travelers can register online or by phone.

Frequent Travellers

If you travel to and from New Brunswick daily for work, to fulfill a custody order, or to receive medical treatment, you may apply for a frequent traveller pass online or by phone.
